1.1 Mode of teaching

1.1.3 As per need of different groups of students

Response: Yes

1. Since the students are heterogeneous in terms of learning levels, the college has evolved a systematic mechanism to implement effective and efficient teaching-learning strategies on the basis of learning levels of students. The departments offer specific program for advanced learners and slow learners after the assessment of learning levels.
2. Advanced learners need acceleration so that they can progress through the curriculum at their fast-learning pace and slow learners need extra attention to cope up with other students. To increase the intellectual ability and creativity of both, teachers organize various programs which may help them to enhance their capacity of learning. Remedial coaching is given to needy students in which under-achievers are given personal attention.
3. The programmes for metamorphizing slow learners are such as not to let them develop an inferiority complex in terms of intellect but to nourish them with confidence and desire to excel.
4. Bridge courses are conducted by various departments before the commencement of programmes. The teachers take special lessons under the scheme Bridge Courses to bridge the knowledge gaps of students with lesser exposure to advanced studies. Bridge course is conducted for the first-year undergraduate students for a week to develop their confidence level, communication skills, competencies, and fundamental knowledge in respective core discipline of the students.
5. Remedial classes are conducted in addition to the regular classes, mostly during off hours. The fundamentals of the subject courses are taught at the department level and their queries are addressed.
6. The programmes for advanced learners are such as to polish their intellect with wisdom, confidence, and professional outlook. Class seminars and presentations are conducted at regular intervals to provide an academic platform to the students for their professional and intellectual growth.

7. The college distributes laptops funded under Srinivas Ramanujan Student Digital Yojana of the Department of Higher Education, Government of Himachal Pradesh to meritorious students figuring in the state merit list.
